Chronology of American Troops in Mexico

April 9, 1914. Tampico incident, officer and crew of Dolphin arrested by Mexicans.
April 19. Admiral Mayo demanded apology, salute of 21 guns. Refused by Huerta.
April 21. Entire Atlantic fleet sailed for Mexico.
April 29. President Wilson asked congress for authority to use armed forces in Mexico.
April 21. American troops landed and fighting begun at Vera Cruz.
April 23. Gen. Funston and army regulars ordered to Vera Cruz.
April 24. Vera Cruz completely seized by Americans.
September 15. President Wilson ordered evacuation of Vera Cruz but order suspended.
November 13. New order for evacuation of Vera Cruz on Nov. 23 promulgated.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Material progress has been made within the last twenty-four hours toward a satisfactory settlement of all the matters in dispute in Mexico. Reports of a truce between the factional leaders to furnish time for further conferences, have reached Washington today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Positive that the Mexican people can work out their own destiny, the administration was today rushing its preparations to eliminate all traces of American domination in the southern republic. United States troops will leave Vera Cruz Nov. 23. The responsible heads of the United States believe that the entire Mexican situation is materially improved. It is considered certain that some sort of compromise agreement will yet be reached by the opposing leaders in the troubled nation to the south. And even though the worst comes to the worst, it is declared certain that one, or at the most, two, general battles will decide which of the factions now vying for power is to control pending the restoration of real constitutional government.

It is because of the realization that presence of American troops in Mexico is an ever present source of irritation that the American regulars have been ordered to leave Vera Cruz by November 23. Both factions have protested to the confidential representatives of the state department that keeping the troops there has complicated the situation.

Before recalling the troops Secretary Bryan conferred with the representatives of the A. B. C. powers. They agreed that the Mexicans have been "coddled" too much. Thrown on their own resources and forced to organize a stable government, it was believed that the resultant crisis would develop the real Mexican leader and that out of the present chaos orderly government would come sooner if the Mexicans realized that they were accomplishing the task themselves.

Still Hold Custom Money

Just who is to receive the more than one million dollars collected in customs receipts at the port of Vera Cruz will not be decided for the present. Late yesterday Secretary Bryan received guarantees of reciprocity for foreign rights and protection for Americans and other nationalities from the representatives of Aguas Calientes convention. Similar assurances had already been received from Carranza.

There is only one thing that could cause the United States to interfere. That would be a wholesale massacre of foreigners by either of the controlling factions. In that eventuality a punitive expedition would be sent into the country and the persons responsible punished directly.

Warn Mexicans

Every high Mexican official has been told that not only the United States, but the Latin-American republics would unite in seeing that such an example would be made of anyone who permitted outrages against foreigners that his or their names would live for ever as a warning to all that foreign lives must be protected. It was because all of the leaders accepted this warning in the most friendly spirit, and promised respect for the mandate, that the decision to leave the Mexicans to

CHRISTMAS SHIP SAILS FOR EUROPE WITH LOAD OF GIFTS FROM U. S.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Christmas cheer for five million families left here aboard St. Claus' special ship, the United States collier Jason, today. The big collier, which is conveying eighty-two carloads of goods from American kiddies and grown-ups for European boys and girls, destitute because of the war, weighed anchor from the Bush Terminal at Brooklyn, shortly after noon today. Three thousand people crowded the dock to cheer and wish the ship bon voyage. All down the harbor, vessels saluted the Santa Claus boat with their whistles and bunting. The ceremonies on the dock, previous to the sailing were brief. Those who spoke included Dock Commissioner Smith, President McAneny of the board of aldermen, and James Keeley of the Chicago Herald. A thousand school children sang songs and waved tiny American flags as the big collier slipped away.

The itinerary of the Christmas ship is: Arrive Falmouth November 26, arrive Marseilles December 5; Genoa December 10; Salonika December 16.

FLEETS EQUAL IN SIZE IN VICTORY WON BY GERMANS OFF CHILI

CRUISERS LEIPZIG AND DRESDEN NOT IN ENGAGEMENT

This is Declaration of Their Officers in Landing
at Valparaíso

VALPARAISO, Nov. 14.—The German squadron of Admiral Spee is again on the high seas flying the Japanese flag. When the Dresden and Leipzig headed out of the harbor today, the fleet of five German vessels struck out the Japanese colors and headed westward.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 14.—Officers of the German cruisers Leipzig and Dresden, which put into this port for supplies and provisions, today insisted that their ships were not in action against the British squadron of Admiral Cradock, off Coronel, the first of this month.

This would mean that the British and German squadrons were equal at least in numbers.

There is a possibility, however, that the Germans may have outnumbered the British by one warship, as the Bremen is reported from British sources to have been engaged. The other German vessels were the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Nürnberg. Opposed to them were the British warships Good Hope, Monmouth and Glasgow. The Good Hope and Monmouth were sent to the bottom.

The appearance of the German cruisers in the harbor here tends to confirm the statements of their officers, as they bear no marks of battle.

The Dresden and Leipzig will sail from Valparaíso today. Waiting outside the harbor for them are three more German cruisers and two transport supply ships. The fact that there are only five warships increases the mystery as to the cruiser Bremen. The vessels off the port are believed to be the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Nürnberg.

The officers of the Leipzig and Dresden were anxious to learn the whereabouts of the British warships still in the Pacific.

Embracing pretty Lucile Mallory, 1931 George street, is an expensive joy, a jury this morning deciding that the pleasure derived is worth seventy-five dollars per embrace. The verdict in favor of Miss Mallory, who had sued Gustave Halvorsen, north side baker, appraised the hug after viewing Miss Mallory, who was on the witness stand yesterday to testify of the alleged actions of the enormous Mr. Halvorsen.

According to the girl she had gone to work for Halvorsen. He hugged her and she slapped him.

Members of Miss Mallory's family testified as to her nervous condition following the alleged hugging.

Halvorsen denied the charge.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 14.—A look into the inside workings of the Wisconsin system of government was furnished the governors of many states Friday afternoon when the heads of a half dozen of the most effective state boards and commissions explained their functions and methods to the conference. Dr. Charles McCarthy told how the legislative reference library aids the legislature and prevents ill-considered framing of statutes; J. Q. Emery gave a history of the efforts to drive adulterated foods out of the state and narrated the success of dairy and weights and measures inspection; Ralph E. Smith described the operation of the board of control in caring for the insane and other state charges and of the success of the parole laws and convict labor with the honor system; M. S. Dudgeon struck a popular chord in his description of the newest plan of book-loaning—by parcel post, accessible to the backwoods settler and city dweller alike; and John Roemer discussed the many-sided functions of the railroad commission so lucidly that from one state at least—Utah—came a request for further enlightenment looking to future legislation out there. This symposium on the "Wisconsin idea" was offered at the request of the governors, who had heard much about it and sought first hand knowledge at the source.

Need Stronger Regulation

There was considerable discussion, originating with western executives, over alleged regulations in the middle west affecting shipments of diseased cattle. Governor Carey of Wyoming complained that shipments into Wyoming last summer were made from Wisconsin and Illinois and found to be diseased. It was explained in reply that the cattle were bled from Chicago and there was an intimation that fraud had been practiced in some of these dealings of cattle owners.

Dr. O. H. Eliason, state veterinarian, was asked to address the governors. He explained methods of tuberculin testing and methods to circumvent inspection. One of these ways was by "plugging," a term used to describe injection of a serum so that cows will not react until after 60 days have elapsed. He said dishonest owners or veterinarians sometimes resort to this trick. Several governors had their suspicions confirmed by this testimony.

Asked about the efficacy of the tuberculin test, Dr. Eliason said: "The test is fairly accurate if you have the backing of the owners of the animals."

The governors turned to a discussion of the power of a governor to suspend or remove a fraudulent or disobedient official. Governor Dunne noted that in Illinois the supreme court has ruled that the governor can remove without a hearing. Governor Ammons complained that in Colorado other state officials are a law unto themselves, and that a division of authority under which the state treasurer and attorney general refused to obey the chief executive's orders resulted in the recent industrial difficulties which left in their wake a big debt for the state, large property loss, over 200 lives sacrificed, and the state "vilified almost beyond belief." He declared he will devote his time to reforming this condition in Colorado by urging the legislature to concentrate authority in the executive.

BERLIN, Via The Hague, Nov. 14.—An official statement from the war office today declares that the Germans have been able to cross the Yser canal west of Lansemareq. It is also declared that the town of St. Eloy, about three miles south of Ypres, has been taken.

(By a United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The allies have succeeded in advancing their line about five-eighths of a mile east of Boxscheote in the continued bitter struggle between Ypres and the coast.

The official communique issued by the war office this afternoon states that the French troops in this section pushed their way forward a kilometer. The Germans continue their offensive, but their attacks have been repelled all along the line.

The advance of the French east of Dixcheste, which is north of Ypres, indicates a straightening of the Ypres wedge which extends into the German lines. With Ypres as the pivot point the swiveling of the allied line forward would carry the French toward Lansemareq as the point of a new wedge in the German position. Continued offensive movements by fresh French troops northeast of Soissons were reported today. The Germans are well entrenched in this section, however, and advances are made only after the sharpest fighting.

The war office was warm in its commendation of the British troops in repulsing the Prussian guard attack upon Ypres. Seven hundred dead Germans were found behind the front trenches of the British. The German attack was made with the greatest determination and bravery and their losses were appalling.

It is believed here that the capital will certainly be moved back to Paris from Bordeaux by the end of this month. Parliament is to convene December 15.

Restaurants in Paris may now remain open until 10 o'clock instead of 8, but cafes must continue to close at the earlier hour. Theaters and music halls are expected to be permitted to reopen in the near future.

Reports here today declare that Canadian troops are now in France, participating in the fighting to prevent the German drive to the coast.

Your Dollar-Fifty Will Buy a Sack And a Sixth Of Flour If You Hurry

Market rumors which have hammered down the price of wheat are going to be of material value in increasing the cargo of flour which will stop the starvation on Belgium. At present prices the dollar and a half unit in which the millers of America are asking contributions will start one and a sixth 49-pound sacks of flour to the refugees. If the market drops further, it will mean more for the money—but the market may go up. Better send your share in now.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Although the war office is optimistic as to the situation in Flanders, it is admitted today that there is nothing to indicate an early cessation of the German attack upon the line defending the coast, or even the imminence of a decisive stage in the long struggle between Ypres and the coast.

On the strength of unofficial reports from northern France, British officialdom today accepted that Dixmude had been retaken by the allies.

Weather Bad
Heavy rains, accompanied by howling gales, are now sweeping the trenches from the coast and on toward the interior. In the Vosges snow is falling. The unfavorable weather, which is rapidly becoming worse, will mean a heavier death list as care of the wounded will be more difficult and many will die from exposure.

The heavy, marshy ground in the districts which were flooded by the Belgians is clogged with bodies of the dead. Owing to the constant shell fire kept up by both sides their burial has become a serious problem. Burial parties are in danger themselves of being mowed down by the spraying shrapnel. Huge holes torn in the ground by the bursting of the larger shells are being used as the graves of hundreds of fallen men. The soldiers have found that at least fifteen men and two or three horses can be buried in one of these caverns dug out by the big shells.

Beg Heavy Clothing

An appeal is being made in London for heavy clothing for the troops. Suffering even now is intense. They are never dry. When it is not raining, the trenches remain damp and cold, and a movement from a trench immediately draws a hail of fire from the enemy. In some places the German and British trenches are so close together that the Britons can hear the Germans talking.

Night attack continues with amazing regularity. For this reason the troops are never sure of rest.

"To the People of La Crosse and vicinity:

"I desire to correct an erroneous impression in reference to the flour which is to be given by the people of La Crosse and vicinity to the famine sufferers of Belgium.

"It has been stated that the flour represented by your contributions is to be sold to the contributors at the wholesale price. This is an error. It is to be sold at actual cost, of manufacture and packing.

"One dollar and a half was used as a unit to avoid trouble in the handling of contributions due to odd cents.

"The grade of flour which will be shipped is the strong, glutinous grade that is used by the people of that country, and this will cost sufficiently below the unit fixed on today's wheat market so that we will be able to ship approximately one-sixth more than a sack for each $1.50 contributed.

"The point I desire to emphasize is that this flour is to be given at actual cost and that no one connected with the entire proposition will receive one cent of profit out of the contributions of anyone to this fund.

"Further, contributions may be made in any amount from fifty cents to one hundred dollars, and they are now being so made. "I want it further understood that this flour is going to the noncombatants, namely, the women, children and old men only, and that any question of one's sympathies being with one side or the other in the war should have absolutely no influence in your contribution to this movement.

"Respectfully,
"A. L. GOETZMANN,
"Secretary and Manager, Listman Mill Company."
In charge La Crosse and vicinity division Belgian Millers' Relief Movement.

The Belgian relief fund which is to send several hundred barrels of flour from La Crosse to ameliorate the effect of war on non-combatants in Belgium kept right on growing today. The morning's mail brought another big batch of checks and money to A. L. Goetzmann, manager of the Listman mill, who is handling the collections in La Crosse.

The first mail this morning brought $150 more to the fund. Later mails added their quota, and the $350 contributed yesterday was nearly doubled today. From time to time during the day additions were brought in person to the Listman mill office, and a considerable amount was taken in by the banks, which yesterday agreed to act as receiving agents for the fund.

Rich and Poor Alike

The movement is taking hold of rich and poor alike. Men in laborer's clothing and girls whose apparel indicated that they were far from wealthy came to the Listman Mill offices this morning and turned over their contributions to the fund. A certain prominent man met Mr. Goetzmann.

"Put me down for $50," he said. "And if you're going to need more, let me know and I'll make it another $50."

Forces of the Red Cross in La Crosse will also be turned to the movement, according to prospects today. Although unorganized, a number of local women have been sewing for the American Red Cross. A meeting of these women has been called for Monday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Sill, 929 State street, at which it is proposed to appoint a committee to canvass the business men of the city for additions to the flour fund.

Oil Company Gives Royalty

For every gallon of oil or gasoline sold by the Interstate Oil company in the next two weeks, half a cent will be added to the Millers' Belgian Relief fund, according to announcement made this morning by Frank D. Weatherwax, head of the company. Commenting on the amount which it was expected would be realized for the fund, Mr. Weatherwax today said that a similar royalty during the past two weeks would have netted $73. Those backing the

How the Pumpkin
Story — Celebrated Thanksgiving.

He Put the Pumpkin in a Bag.

"A JOLLY looking, big, yellow pumpkin lay out in the cornfield after the corn had all been shocked, and the cold north wind was blowing through the stubble." Daddy had begun the evening story.

"I wonder if I must lie here all winter?" grumbled the pumpkin.

"Well, spoke up the crook necked squash, 'what if you do have to?'"

"I'll freeze!" cried the pumpkin, shivering and shaking until his yellow skin almost shook off it.

"Well," said the crook necked squash, 'I'd just as soon be frozen as roasted.'

"What do you mean?" asked the pumpkin, rolling over nearer to his neighbor.

"Well," replied the crook necked squash, 'when I was a seed and was being planted I heard the gardener say to his son, "There, that will make us a fine dish for Thanksgiving!"'

"Oh, my goodness," cried the pumpkin, 'do you mean that they eat us?'"

"I should think they do eat us," said the crook necked squash, laughing so his seeds jingled.

"I don't believe it," quaked the pumpkin. 'I never heard anything about it.'

"Well, you were probably planted by a man that couldn't talk," explained the crook necked squash.

"Well, who's afraid?" said the pumpkin jauntily. 'Besides, I can roll away where no one can find me.'

"Well, you can't, you know, because you are fastened to that vine," the crook necked squash piped up.

"Well, I can break loose from that vine, can't I?"

"Why don't you try it?" asked the crook necked squash.

"I will!" yelled the pumpkin.

"Then he rolled and strained and puffed, but he couldn't get away.

"Just then a man with a big knife in his hand came walking through the stubble.

"Here is a fine, big, meaty pumpkin. I'll take it home for our Thanksgiving pie," said the farmer.

"So he cut the vine away and put the pumpkin in a bag he was carrying.

"But before the pumpkin got quite into the bag he saw the crook necked squash wagging his head and looking wise, and then, as the bag was closed, he heard him say:

"Well, you know, that was what you were planted for—to make Thanksgiving pies for Farmer Brown and his family, so you have no reason to grumble."

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

BRIDGET

BY JEAN DICKERSON

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The Caldwell reached the station just as their train drew in from the east. Among the passengers arriving was a tall young man with a suit case. At sight of Dick Caldwell and his wife he uttered an exclamation of pleasure.

"Jack Benton!" cried Mrs. Caldwell distractedly. "Of course you were coming to us—oh, Dick, the train is moving—go to the house, Jack, and Bridget will take care of you. We will be home tonight."

"Until tonight, then," Jack Benton waved his hat as the train rumbled away. He strode down the platform and inquired the way to the Caldwell's new summer home, and finding it just two miles by the pleasant, shady road he decided not to wait for the stuffy station stage.

"I hope Bridget is a good cook," he mused. "This walk is certainly going to give me an appetite."

Miss Bridget Wren was dusting the living room when her small niece discovered a stranger within the gates of the tiny domain.

"Bridget, dear, here comes another agent," announced Polly.

"Bridget!" scolded Bridget; "that's the third one this morning! Can't they realize that people don't come to the seashore to be pestered by book agents? I don't wonder our house is dissatisfied and discharge herself with Hannah. Go to the door, Polly, and shoo the good man away."

The knocker sounded a sharp rattle and Polly went giggling to the door.

"Please, good man, we don't want anything today," lisped Polly, politely, and then, after a second glance at the amused stranger, she cast aside all formalities and threw herself into his outstretched arms.

"Oh, Mr. Jack! I haven't seen you for a thousand years. I must tell Bridget that I thought you were another book agent—it is so funny!"

She led him, laughing, to a seat in the new vacant living room, and disappeared.

"Tell Bridget Mrs. Caldwell said she was to take care of me—and you may tell her that I'm hungry as a bear!" called Jack after her.

"The idea!" cried pretty Bridget when Polly discovered her in the kitchen. "Does the man think I'm a cook?"

"It's a cook's name," observed Polly sagely.

Bridget laughed. "So it is, very often, my dear; I'm sure Mr. Benton believed Lillie was referring to her cook instead of her half sister whom he had never seen. We will not disappoint your hungry friend, Polly! Don't you breathe a word to the cook, let him think I am the cook. Take him into the garden or down to the beach while I prepare lunch."

Half an hour later Polly Caldwell was demurely seated at the head of the table while Jack Benton, highly amused at the small maiden's assumption of her mother's dignity, chatted to her of places where he had been and of interesting animals he knew.

He tasted the fluffy omelet and grew enthusiastic. "Bridget is some cook!" he exclaimed.

At that moment he saw for the first time the author of the omelet. Bridget had kept out of the dining room, but now she must bring in the salad.

Polly buried a crimson face in her napkin when she saw Bridget's fair hair twisted into a hard jump on top of her head. The heat of the fire had brought a fierce color into her cheeks. In spite of her print frock and the plainness of her hair dressing, Bridget was as pretty, as a picture.

"So that is Bridget!" gasped Polly when the fairy-like form had departed.

"Yes," Polly emerged from the napkin, all a-dimple with fun. "Taste the mayonnaise—daddy says Bridget's mayonnaise is puffy like heaven!"

"It is!" agreed Benton seriously. "I can't imagine any one parting with Bridget, if only for the omelet. She is a treasure of a cook."

"She makes lovely pies, too," went on Polly, warm in the praise of her beloved aunt. "Once when she made a lemon meringue pie—that's daddy's favorite dessert, you know—well, once, daddy tasted it, then he jumped up and kissed Bridget before the whole table—we had company that day," she added innocently.

Jack Benton choked. During the spasm of coughing that followed his face grew quite red. Bridget, herself, was a delectable morsel.

How he longed to ask if Bridget had resented Dick Caldwell's enthusiastic appreciation of her cooking! But, of course, he could not take advantage of Polly's innocent prattle.

The Bridget came in, this time with head poised haughtily, bearing in her small hands a silver tray which she set before Jack Benton. On the tray was a delicious-looking lemon meringue pie, one plate and silver fork. Also, to Polly's disgust was a china bowl containing a large baked apple smothered in thick cream.

"Bridget, can't I have any pie?" she quavered, as Bridget deftly removed the salad course.

Bridget looked severely at her small niece.

"Your mamma doesn't want you to eat pie, Miss Polly," she said respectfully.

Polly's love of lemon pie overcame

Mrs. Emma Stolt, No. 697 Atlantic St., Appleton, Wis., writes: "Peruna has done me a great deal of good since I began taking it, and I am always glad to speak a good word for it."

"Three years ago I was in a wretched condition with backache, bearing down pains, and at times was so sore and lame that I could not move about. I had inflammation and irritation, and although I used different remedies they did me no good."

"A neighbor who had been using Peruna advised me to try it, and I am glad that I did."

In a later testimonial, Mrs. Stolt says:

"Allow me to express my lasting gratitude for the good your valuable remedies, Peruna and Manalin, have done for myself and family. We have used Peruna for the past twelve years, with never failing results, and could not get along without them in our household. They have saved us many doctor bills."

her discretion.

Tears of anger flew into her lovely eyes.

"I think you're the meanest thing, Bridget Lamont!" she screamed angrily. "I don't care what Mr. Benton thinks so you needn't look at me that way. Mother never told you I couldn't eat lemon pie—she told the real Bridget, so there!"

Bridget fled.

"The real Bridget?" echoed Jack as he thrust a knife in the delicately browned meringue.

"Yes—she's only my aunt—my Aunt Bridget—mother's sister—and I think she's too mean for anything—just when I am helping her play she was the cook—so there."

Benton's eyes were shining. He cut a generous slice of pie and passed it over to Polly with the careless freedom of one who has never been a parent and who knows nothing of the delicate digestion of a child.

"Eat that, Polly, and tell me, pretty maiden, is Bridget really your aunt?"

Between ecstatic mouthfuls of pie Polly told the story of the discontented cook and how that very morning she had made her departure, at the same time taking the parlor maid, Hannah with her.

"Bridget and I were doing the housework when you came," added Polly. "Mother's gone to town today to look for new servants; of course you thought Bridget was the cook—that being a cook's name—but it's a pretty name, just the same!" she added with a flash of loyalty.

"It's a very lovely name," agreed Jack Benton; "there is a beautiful nickname for Bridget—perhaps—but I say, Polly, this pie is a dream!"

"That's what daddy said when he kissed Aunt Bridget that time," observed Polly, as she slipped from her chair. "Come down to the shore, Mr. Benton, and I'll show you my stony chair where I sit and read my fairy tales."

Jack went reluctantly. He felt that he owed an apology to Mrs. Caldwell's lovely, mischievous sister; when he came back from the shore perhaps he could explain his ridiculous mistake and obtain forgiveness.

They reached the stony chair, among heaped up boulders and discovered a flushed and lovely Bridget, cooling her cheeks in the salt breeze. Her hair was blowing loosely.

"Oh," cried Bridget, when she saw them.

"All is discovered—flee at once!" smiled Jack Benton, holding out a hand. "I hope you will forgive my stupidity, Miss Lamont."

"Polly has told you!" accused Bridget. "I am the sinner—only I was tempted. Lillie is so careless about explanations—she takes it for granted that all her friends know each other."

"That lemon pie was a dream," said Jack gravely.

"It ought to be good—Bridget is a cook's name," she replied with equal solemnity.

They both laughed.

"Mr. Jack knows a lovely nickname for Bridget," put in Polly. "Do tell it, please, Mr. Jack?"

"Bridget," said Jack, rather guiltily, and although there was no especial reason why they should blush, both Bridget and Jack Benton colored with embarrassment.

Perhaps there was a mutual presentiment of some future June day, when there would be a wedding, when Bridget would be a bride indeed, and Polly a flower girl.

HOME COMING OF THE REFUGEES

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
SENLIS, France, Oct. 26.—By Mail to New York.—The English colonel who had held me under parole for five days in the little town had told me that I could depart in peace; he was satisfied that I was not a German spy. The son of the Frenchman who had taken me into his little house told me that he could get a horse and wagon to drive me to Senlis, 20 miles away. While I was waiting for him to bring the rig his mother put me up a package of food consisting of cold chicken, bread and a bottle of water.

Refugees Fill Road
An hour later we were on the road. It was a wonderful Indian summer morning. The sound of the guns floated over the golden fields of stubble through the blue haze. The long road was dotted with little groups of fugitives; some of them were resting under the great elms that lined the thoroughfares; others were plodding along, women and children, homeless, living almost like Indians.

The horse wasn't a good one. If he had been the Germans would have taken him days before when they held possession of this territory.

We had gone about a mile when two women and a little girl, plodding along in front of us, turned and asked the driver for a lift.

I gave my consent. One of the women climbed onto the seat with the driver and the other got in beside me, putting the little girl on her lap.

Back to Homes
"We've walked 15 miles today," explained the woman. "We're going home to Senlis."

"But Senlis is destroyed," I said. "It's the only home we have," said the woman, shrugging her shoulders. "I hope our home is not entirely gone. Oh, it was terrible. We ran away in the night."

"Were you there when the Germans came?"

"Indeed, yes. I took Yvonne, my little girl here, into the cellar, and her 'Aunt Nana' (pointing to the woman on the seat) followed us. We stayed in the cellar until it was pitch dark. Then we fled. The houses in the town were burning and there was shooting on every hand. An old man, who is the village street lighter, told us that the mayor had been shot and twelve other big men of the town, and that we must fly. So we went, without a bit of food or water, and with only few clothes. But the Germans are gone now, we hear, and we are going back."

"Oh, we've worried and worried and wondered, these weeks," said Madame Grimaud, for that was her name. "We talk and talk and talk about what might have happened at home and about who will be there and who will be gone when we get back. It's no use. We'll know enough."

War Scars by Road
We talked about things we saw as we went along the road; a big German artillery wagon which had been ditched; a threshing machine standing beside unfinished hay stacks, just as the thresher had left it when the war started; a big stone tower that had been blown open at its base by a German shell; trees that had been cut down so that marksmen could sweep the road with machine guns; a dozen graves marked by little wooden crosses which bore among other letterings the word "Hier"; a great open barn in which stood a dozen French aeroplanes, ready for action.

It was evening when we came into Senlis. Many of the residents who had fled were back again. The village street lighter was in the act of lighting a corner lamp when Madame Grimaud pointed him out to me.

"He's safe," she exclaimed. "They didn't kill him." A candy store was open to the sky; burned out. A turn in the street would show us the Grimaud home. Yvonne jumped out and ran ahead; Aunt Nana leaned out from the driver's seat to look around the corner; the driver leaned out, too, and so did Madame Grimaud and myself.

"You dear darling Dido. You light of my life," we heard Yvonne yell. A huge black dog had attacked her, in a frenzy of delight. "My baby! My old-rascal baby!" said Yvonne, hugging the big writhing mass of dog.

And the House Was There
We turned the corner.

"Our house is there! Our house is there!" cried Aunt Nana.

"Yes! Yes!" cried Madame Grimaud, gathering her few possessions into her arms.

"There it is. Stop there," ordered Aunt Nana. "The door is closed. The lock is broken. The roof is on."

"Some windows are broken," cried Yvonne.

Madame Grimaud and Aunt Nana didn't have time to take their belongings out of the wagon. They jumped to the pavement and dashed to the door. Before they got to it the door opened and three women rushed out, with open arms to meet them. Tears and cries of delight were mingled; there was a torrent of words.

I took the things out of the wagon, put them in the doorway and drove away. They were too excited to notice my departure.

I suppose the women were neighbors who had been burned out of their homes. But I had entered deeply enough as it was, into the intimacies of the lives of the three wayfarers, and I had no more part to play in their homecoming.

Good Manager.
"Is your son's wife a good manager?"

"Yes. She manages to make him jump whenever she gives him an order, which is more than I ever was able to do."—Judge.

DON'T BE A
GRASSHOPPERAesop tells the story of a grasshopper who loafed during the fine summer weather while the ant was making provision for the winter, and points a moral of industry by describing the unpleasant fate of the grasshopper when the thermometer dropped.A very modern instance of the grasshopper in Aesop's tale is the householder who puts off laying in his winter supplies, fuel in particular, until the first cold snap.Recently we were talking with a fuel dealer, who shall be nameless, who no stigma of advertising shall cling to this screed. He was kicking in large round periods about the foolishness of many of his customers who were procrastinating with the inevitable.He drew a compelling picture of the first cold wave—his telephone ringing all day long with the hurry up orders of freezing citizens and his deliverymen lost to sight beneath a flood of orders.Seems silly, does it not? Deliv-erymen are working half-time in this pleasant weather, only to work until late at night when the warm spell breaks and every one wants fuel in a hurry.

Don't be a grass-hopper.

THE DUTY OF APPRECIATIONThe value of accumulated wealth depends upon the character of that one whom Providence has made her trustee for its administration. Be one of prudent generosity, broad in conception, discriminating in judgment, posterity will share with his own generation the fruits of his provident wisdom.To a city whose allotments of wealth are thus wisely bestowed there comes a sense of security against any crisis that may arise in its affairs. Lacking all emergency, citizens measure the probable conduct of their able financiers, in apossibly stressful future, by the character of their stewardship in times of normal condition.In this sense La Crosse is peculiarly fortunate. Its men of large affairs have earned and won this confidence. Here liberality has been accompanied by far-sighted understanding. There has been nothing petty, transient or unwisely bestowed. That for the acorn of today there shall be the oak of tomorrow is the philosophy running through these achievements in public spirit.Recognition of a people's only true wealth—the riches of health, culture and spirituality—has been the sound foundation upon which human impulse has been building so magnificently for this community.
Men great unto such achievement dwell in loftiness of spirit above the thought of the distinction that may accompany such endeavor, but unconsciously they weave their respective personalities into their work. It is there, vivid to the consciousness of their generation. They ask nothing; they give, and the wealth of the gift is the jewel of thought in its golden setting. To them, that is sufficient, but indeed shall we prove a calloused community if we shall neglect to insist that those who follow us, strangers of our own blood and theirs, shall hold in grateful association with the splendid things they have done the names of citizens who have shown us citizenship in its loftiest interpretation.SHIP SAILS IN EARLY DECEMBERThe Northwestern Miller, food ship for the starving Belgian non-combatants, will sail from Philadelphia early in December. It will carry ninety thousand barrels of flour to the Belgian children, women and old men who are hungry in the track of war.That the United States will make up its cargo with a right good will is overwhelmingly evident, not only in La Crosse, but in every city in the northwest and elsewhere where the millers have invited the public to help. The response is even greater than the answer which has been characteristic of the United States in every call from famine-stricken countries for the last fifty years.The time in which to work is short, however. Much must be done in little over a fortnight. Wheat must be bought, delivered, turned into flour, sacked and loaded. It must be moved from the northwest to the sea coast, and there loaded, with all the delays which the congestion of converging streams from every part of the country will entail upon the ship which is to carry it over sea. It is probable that the La Crosse consignment must be under way no later than the end of November.La Crosse is going to give, and give generously, to the Northwestern Miller's cargo. That much was apparent in the first mail yesterday morning. But it behooves us to act without delay."He gives twice who gives quick-

OWEN GOES ON TRIAL ONCE MORE

DENVER, Nov. 14.—The third trial of Robert Owen on the charge of kidnaping the Rev. Otis L. Spurgeon here last spring began in the criminal court here today. The juries in both of Owen's previous trials disagreed.

The Rev. Spurgeon was a lecturer for the Knights of Luther, an anti-Catholic organization. Last April he delivered an address here in which he made charges against Catholic priests and nuns. A few evenings after the lecture a crowd of men appeared at his hotel, seized the lecturer, threw him into an auto and took him far out into the country, where he was severely beaten and ordered not to return to Denver under pain of worst treatment. Spurgeon accused Owen of having been the leader of his assailants.

FRED WITTENBERG FOUND DEAD TODAY

North Side Man Victim of Heart Failure; Brother Finds Body in Back Yard

Fred Wittenberg, aged 47 years, a well known north side painter, was found dead at 7 o'clock this morning in the rear of the Garibaldi Winell property at 826 Caledonia street by his brother, Carl Wittenberg, who was driving past at the time.

Mr. Wittenberg, who lived with his brother-in-law, Garibaldi Winell, was in the habit of rising early in the mornings and it is thought that he dropped dead in the back yard soon after arising this morning. Dr. E. C. Swarthout, who was called, pronounced the case one of heart failure.

Mr. Wittenberg is survived by two brothers, Carl and William of La Crosse, and four sisters, Mrs. John Sokolik of French Island and Mrs. Rose Johnson, Fred Schroeder and Mrs. Garibaldi Winell of La Crosse. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the Winell residence, 826 Caledonia street. Rev. Finch A. Clarke officiating. Burial will take place in Oak Grove cemetery.

JAP LAND PROBLEM COMES UP AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The whole Japanese alien land ownership question has been projected into the diplomatic situation in Washington by the elections in California and Washington. Were it not for the present war, it was stated by a high diplomatic source close to the Japanese embassy today, Japan would in all likelihood urge immediate action by the federal government which would settle finally the Pacific coast question.

In the California elections, a majority of the members chosen for the legislature are said to be anti-Japanese, and therefore, it is said, it is extremely likely that an amendment to the alien land law will be passed which will even prohibit the leasing of land by an alien.

POINTS OUT BODY THEN DISAPPEARS

Unknown Man Found a Corpse in Empty Box-car on Milwaukee Road

Mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a stranger in a box car in the yards of the Milwaukee road at Savanna, Ill. The body was found in an empty box car on train No. 162 from Dubuque Thursday night, just as the train was stopping at the Burlington crossing.

Conductor Moody of the train was accosted by a stranger and told that there was a dead man in the car. Moody investigated, finding the story true. In the meantime, the informer disappeared and has not yet been found by the Savanna authorities. Foul play is suspected. A wound over the right temple warrants the suspicion.

According to the story of the informer, the dead man was a resident of Dubuque, going under the name of Ryan.

JAPS SEEK GERMAN SHIPS THAT HIT BRITISH OFF CHILE COAST

A fleet of eight Japanese warships was recently sighted at Easter Island, in the Pacific, about 2,300 miles west of the Chilean coast. This fleet, it is believed, is looking for the German cruisers Nurnberg, Dresden, Scharnhorst, Leipzig, Gneisenau and Bremen, which recently won a brilliant victory over the British off the coast of Chile.

As gratitude is a necessary and a glorious, so also is it an obvious, a cheap and an easy virtue, so obvious that wherever there is life there is a place for it, so cheap that the covetous may be grateful without expense and so easy that the sluggish may be so likewise without labor.

FIND LIVE BOMB

IN COURTROOM

Policeman Hurls Sputtering Death Engine Through Window in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Only prompt action by Patrolman George O'Connor averted a tragedy in the Center street police court here today when a deadly bomb was found spluttering beneath a seat in the courtroom. O'Connor was sitting back of the row of chairs under which the bomb had been placed and looking down, happened to see it. It was a small square box with a Goosey, Goosey, Gander! sputtering fuse at one end. The patrolman jumped forward, grabbed the box and hurled it out of the window. Other policemen then surrounded it, kept the crowd which had gathered in the street back and water was poured over the infernal machine.

When opened by Owen Eagan of the bureau of combustibles, the bomb was discovered to be loaded with powder, bullets and slugs.

Mixed with the powder was some yellow substance which Eagan said he did not recognize, but it might be some form of dynamite.

Policemen who were in the courtroom said that soon after Magistrate Campbell arrived, a young Italian got up and left. He struck a match, and the policemen merely supposed he was passing out of the door. The police believe the bomb was placed with the intention of injuring Magistrate Campbell. It was Campbell who sentenced Bouck White, the anarchist preacher, to jail and has bitterly denounced anarchists and bomb throwers.

A Simple Safety Device.

The hammer is a useful tool, but its use is not quite free from danger to the user or from injury to materials. The flat, highly polished surface is likely to glance off the nail unless the blow is squarely delivered, and when the nail is of cast metal its head often flies off and inflicts quite severe injuries.

One firm, says Chambers' Journal, had innumerable accidents from this cause, and some of the men were permanently injured. Thereupon the managers tried hammer heads with scored faces as an experiment. Owing to the success of the experiment the polished face hammer has been abolished in that firm's factory, except for special classes of work.

If Silicon Were a Gas.

Whistler at West Point seems to have had a sort of subconscious knowledge of his destiny, and this gave him an utter indifference to everything not consonant with it. Here he was a failure. A direct statement in a class recitation that "silicon is a gas" discouraged his chemical instructor and was one of the final blows to his military career. As Whistler said himself, if silicon had only been a gas he might have become a major general. But the fates were against it.

Little Elizabeth had been offended in some way. She went off into a corner and turned her back on the family.

"I'm mad," she exclaimed sulkily. "I wish I didn't have any father or mother."

"Well," said Elizabeth doubtfully, "I don't mind having father. He doesn't hang around here much, but I'm getting awful tired of the rest of you."

"Perhaps it is best after all," remarked the rejected suitor as he lingered in the hall. "A man of twenty-five would soon tire of a wife who hovered around the thirty-two mark."

"Why, Mr. Ardent," said the woman in the case, "how very ungrateful of you to dare to insinuate that I am thirty-two!"

"Well, perhaps you are not," he replied, "but it certainly struck me that you were somewhere near the freezing point."—London Mail.

"Strongheart" is the story of the Indian who went to college, became a football star and a college hero. When he wanted to marry the sister of the man who's life he saved, a girl who loved him, he was made to feel that he was not the white man's equal. A marvelous production with a college football game.

BIG PARAMOUNT FEATURE

"Burning Daylight" another brilliant success in the famous series of Bosworth-London feature film productions will be shown at The Bijou for three days beginning Sunday, Nov. 15. The play opens with "Burning Daylight's" life in the Klondike that being the nickname of Elam Harnish, a daring high-spirited prospector, superbly played by Hobart Bosworth. We see how he "rode his hunch" about the big gold strike so effectively that he was able to pull out for San Francisco worth eleven millions. Once in that metropolitan city, he plunges into the conflicts of money-making life there with all the abandon with which he prospected for gold. How the life of the city hardens his spirit and softens his muscles, and how the love of "Dede Mason" proves the saving influence of his life, putting his love to a great test, concludes this highly dramatic and compelling play. Hobart Bosworth plays "Burning Daylight" and makes it a brilliant impersonation. Scenes of Klondike life and of the beautiful country around San Francisco are beautifully photographed and form a distinct feature of the release.

Bob Perry, the winner of last year's 200-mile motorcycle race at Savannah, is expected to again take part in a similar event on Thanksgiving Day.

A Test of Nerves.

To crouch in a trench or covered bombproof from dawn until dusk, to hear the incessant whistle of thousands of projectiles, to mark the little clouds of dust kicked up by bullets as they strike the ground near a trench or shelter, to start at the bursting of shrapnel shells, each containing 200 or 300 bullets which are scattered over many yards, is a test of human nerve which Napoleon's Old Guard was never called upon to withstand.—Walde-mar Knemppert in American Review of Reviews.

Alderman in Attack on the Health Department Finds Little Favor in Common Council

TO ACT ON BUDGET WEDNESDAY

Delay of County Board in Furnishing Amount of State and County Tax Delays the City

Alderman Paul W. Mahoney at last night's meeting of the common council, declared that La Crosse is paying twice as much for its health department, as any other city in Wisconsin, omitting Milwaukee.

He read a long list of the expenses and salaries of the various cities having public health departments.

Mahoney's attitude was assumed when a petition was read, asking councilmen to delegate Dr. J. M. Furstman, city health officer, to a convention of the American Public Health association to be held at Jacksonville, Fla., November 30.

The council voted to furnish Dr. Furstman's transportation and he will attend. Mahoney's attack on the department meeting with little favor.

City Engineer George B. Bradish will probably be appointed by the council as building inspector, under the new building code ordinance introduced last night by Alderman John Schneeberger, Jr., and referred to a committee.

Would Penalize Woolley

Because work on the paving of St. Andrew street on the North side was eleven days late in being finished, Alderman Paul W. Mahoney recommended that Thomas Woolley, the contractor, be paid the bill, less $500, as a forfeit. The motion lost. Woolley now has a suit for the recovery of $35,000, the total of an old claim.

Plans for the proposed North side bath house were presented and referred to a committee last night.

To Obtain Bids

The board of public works was instructed to obtain bids for the repairing of the west end of the Mississippi wagon bridge, and the placing of cressote blocks west of the west approach.

Alderman Mahoney introduced an ordinance prohibiting the tacking or pasting of signs on bridges and viaducts.

The council will meet Wednesday night, when the city's 1915 budget will be acted upon.

CHRONIC INVALID TAKES OWN LIFE

Miss Eva McLaughlin of Trempealeau Cuts Throat at Home of Dr. E. D. Pierce Last Night

TREMPEALEAU, Wis., Nov. 14.—(Special.)—Miss Eva McLaughlin, 50, for years a chronic invalid, took her own life sometime between midnight and 7 o'clock this morning. Her body, with the throat slashed by a razor, was found lying in a pool of blood on the rear porch of the home of Dr. E. D. Pierce this morning by George Farber, a neighbor. Miss McLaughlin had been staying at the home of Dr. Pierce. Miss McLaughlin recently had been subject to periods of extreme melancholy. A sister, Mrs. A. F. Gigs, lives in Trempealeau. One brother, Frank McLaughlin, has been summoned from Iowa.

SPOTLIGHTS

The "Colonial Theater," Baltimore, is a well patronized, popular theater; but their equilibrium was seriously perturbed during the recent engagement of Gus Hill's production of George McManus's great cartoon play, "Bringing Up Father." Absolute capacity, and people turned away at every performance, was a daily occurrence.

The present theatrical season is a veritable survival of the fittest. Notwithstanding all reports of disastrous business, if you offer the theater going public what they want, they'll patronize it liberally. "Bringing Up Father" furnishes hilarious but absolutely clean amusement for one hundred and twenty consecutive minutes. The comedy could survive longer, but the spectator couldn't. There's music a-plenty and pretty girls, too.

The college is an organization created for the purpose of improving the condition of the surgical profession through the elimination of certain mercenary practices obnoxious to the better class of practitioners. The movement is legislative as well as educational, the new Wisconsin law against fee-splitting representing one of many similar activities to which the society is devoted.

NEW FIRM HERE TO EMPLOY TEN

William Armstrong to Bring Industry Here to Manufacture "Medicine Dummies"

Under the name of the Armstrong Medicine Dummies, a new firm is to open on the north side immediately for the manufacture of the device. Ten people will be employed at once and the working force will be increased as the business grows.

William P. Armstrong is the head of the new industry and holds patent rights on a unique gymnasium device, which he claims has eliminated the punching bag wherever it has been installed.

The "dummy" is in the shape of a man and inflated. It is set in a heavy saucer-shaped base which makes tipping it over impossible.

It is used extensively by boxers, its ability to "come back" after a blow making it much more practical for practice fighting than any device formerly put on the market.

Mr. Armstrong has been manufacturing his device in Birmingham, England, but because of the war was forced to seek another location.

The dummy, which is highly recommended by many physicians as a cure for bad breath, will be manufactured in five sizes, the biggest the height of the average man and the smallest suitable for children.

A building has been secured at Caledonia and St. Paul streets and the manufacture of the product will be started immediately.

"I got the idea for the dummy while prospecting in Alaska," said Mr. Armstrong today. "I had a prospector's pan in my hand. In it was a stick. I dropped the pan and the stick flew up and hit me in the head. I conceived the idea of making a boxing device on the same principle and it has proven a success."

Mr. Armstrong is a guest at the home of George Phillips on the north side. It was through the efforts of Mr. Phillips that Armstrong chose La Crosse.

fund expect that in view of the cause to which the royalty is to be devoted for the next two weeks a considerably larger sum will be added to the relief fund.

Surrounding Towns Join
Outlying towns near La Crosse and their mills, are joining the movement. At Stoddard, the citizens are gathering funds for the purchase of five or six barrels of flour at their local mill, which will be shipped to La Crosse for addition to the local shipment. At Galesville a similar movement is under way. Mr. Goetzmann was today endeavoring to make arrangements for shipment of the flour by the railroads.

Contributions come from individuals mostly, of course, but organizations are also coming to the support of the movement. In addition to the contribution of the little girls' club which leads this column, came

"Harvesters" Promise Sack
Ten little girls, all of them about ten years old, have a club called "The Harvesters." Yesterday they met, and decided to empty their treasury, nearly, to send a sack of flour to the starving Belgian children. Their sack of flour, though, grew overnight when their parents heard of the plan. "The Harvesters'" contribution to the La Crosse shipment will be three or four sacks, at least.

one today from the Lincoln-Douglas Debating society at the high school. The young men in the society met for their regular debate last night, and before they adjourned one of them made a little talk. He called attention to the peace and plenty in the United States, and then he painted a picture of the contrast presented by Belgium. So the Lincoln-Douglas society unanimously voted to add two sacks of flour to the shipment.

Rev. Ambrose Murphy, pastor of St. James church on the north side, added his share to the fund today, accompanying his check with a letter, which said:

"I want to feed six helpless Belgians. I spent two very happy years in Belgium."

Pick New Ship
Every detail of the shipment which the millers of North America are going to make to Belgium early next month has been explained in the current issue of the Northwestern Miller, the milling trade journal.

The ship which will carry the cargo is the Northwestern Miller, just launched on the Tyne. Her first voyage from America to Europe will be on the errand of mercy which the millers and the public of the United States and Canada have made possible.

The carrying capacity of the Northwestern Miller is seven thousand tons, equivalent to seventy thousand barrels of flour. The millers, however, expect to have a cargo of 90,000 barrels, so arrangements have been made for the space for the additional 2,000 barrels on other ships sailing at the same time as the Northwestern Miller.

Freight Quickly Paid
The ocean freight has been guaranteed. The exceptionally low rate quoted by the steamship company of Furness Withy & Co., was $41,680 for the entire shipment. An anonymous person, who is said to be well known in the milling trade, promptly

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

(BY J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—11 A. M.

Turkey's first offensive against Russia is now revealing itself in the Caucasus. Apparently, it is in considerable force, and indicates the successful application of pressure by the Germans at Constantinople who are working to confine Turkey's main operations to the Russian campaign.

The Turkish movement is developing toward Batum and is a sudden counter-offensive that has apparently caught the Russians unprepared. Batum is a heavily fortified sea port, about twenty miles from the Turkish frontier, and is one of Russia's principal military bases in the Caucasus. The Russians have been operating further to the south, in the district around Mount Ararat and seemingly have left the northern roadway into their territory largely unguarded.

The capture of Batum would be an important victory for the Turks and doubly important for the Germans because it is a port center for the Baku petroleum fields. Huge quantities of petroleum are stored in Batum and the Germans are in urgent need of oil as motor transportation.

The Germans have searched everywhere for the precious fluid but the supply is far below the demand.

TERRIFIC GALE IS SWEEPING LAKES

Many Ships Limp to Port After Battling with a Seventy-five Mile Hurricane

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—With the lakes swept by a storm that all but equals in severity the disastrous gale of a year ago, when thirteen big lake steamers were sent to the bottom and 235 sailors drowned, fear was felt today for the safety of a score of vessels known to be fighting against the high seas on the upper lakes.

Many ships limped to cover early today after a night of terror. Crews reported that at times the wind had a velocity of 75 miles an hour.

The steamer Colonial of the Reid Wrecking company at Sarnia, Ont., was believed to be in danger of breaking up today at Pardsos, Lake Erie, where she was beached yesterday. The crew reached shore in safety.

Alpena reported the arrival at that port of the barge Ashland, in tow of the steamer L. Edward Hines of the Hines Lumber company. The Ashland's deck load of white pine lumber valued at $15,000, had been swept away.

The steamer Osceola and consort, wrecked on the reefs at Naubway Bay, in upper Lake Michigan, are reported to be total losses. Their crews were taken off by life savers from Manistique.

ly sent a check for $6,000, and in a short time the balance of the ocean freight was underwritten from various sources. Following the example set in the case of the Christmas ship, every railroad in the country has promised to carry the shipments to the docks at Philadelphia at no cost. Lighterage and storage charges have also been donated. Even telegrams concerning the cargo are carried free of charge by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

ORMSON MUST PAY TO GET HIS AUTO

Judge Higbee Directs Special Verdict Calling for Payment of Repair Bill

Judge Higbee this morning made final disposition of the case of L. G. Ormson against Frank Brown, brought for the recovery of an automobile. The machine, owned by Mr. Ormson, was repaired by Mr. Brown who refused to give it up until the repair bill was paid. Ormson claimed that Brown owed him more than the amount of the repair bill.

A jury early in the week brought in a special verdict and this morning Judge Higbee held that Mr. Brown had a right to hold the automobile until he was paid thirty-seven dollars for the repairs.

LIKED JAIL BUT GOES TO WAUPUN

Joseph Scanlon, Dubuque, who liked the La Crosse jail so well he repeated his offense the minute he was released yesterday after serving a thirty-day sentence, this morning "broke into" the state penitentiary for one year.

"No more box cars for me this winter," Scanlon told the turnkey when released. "I'll be back for supper."

He stole two pairs of shoes from the Arenz store. "Every tramp who tries to 'break into jail' will get the same dose from me," Judge Brindley said after imposing the penitentiary sentence.

FARMER DID NOT SECURE DAMAGES

Gustav Krueger, farmer, whose rig was damaged in a collision with an auto owned by Milton Radtke and driven by an employee of Radtke, was not awarded $100 damages, as published last night.

The jury found that both parties were negligent and refused to award damages.

A list of questions was submitted to the jury and in answering one determining the damage to Krueger, if any, the jury merely said $100.

Krueger must pay the court costs, the verdict in reality being a victory for the defendant.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctor pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. SUPERVISORS VOTE TO KILL "MARY ANN"

County Board Adopts Resolution, Introduced by Cox, Asking Legislature to Repeal Law

BAUM AFTER DUNN COUPON BALLOT

Fight on Resolution Put Over Until Tuesday; to Visit the Agricultural School Next Week

County supervisors yesterday adopted a resolution petitioning the next Wisconsin legislature to repeal the "Mary Ann" or second choice law, used at the primaries. The measure was introduced by Supervisor L. B. Cox of Onalaska.

Supervisors V. S. Keppel and Leonard Kleeber fought hard to kill the motion.

"I consider that this body has no right to dictate to the people whether or not they may have the use of the second choice law in their voting," said Supervisor Kleeber.

In arguing for the passing of his resolution, Supervisor Cox claimed that the second choice law had caused nothing but trouble all over the state, and that it had no legitimate use.

Keppel for Law

"It is not the fault of the law," said Supervisor Keppel, "that some do not believe in it, but it is the fault of the people in not trying to understand it, and not wanting to understand it."

Supervisor Barber declared that the use of the second choice vote means casting two ballots; voting for two candidates.

Supervisor George Baum, North La Crosse, late yesterday afternoon in the county board, introduced a resolution that La Crosse county discontinue the use of the Dunn coupon ballot.

His motion to pass seconded by Supervisor Keppel failed. It will be brought up Tuesday.

To Visit "Aggie" School

The county board adjourned yesterday afternoon until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. This was done in order to give committees opportunity to work.

The supervisors will visit the La Crosse County Agricultural school at Onalaska Tuesday afternoon.

Chairman R. W. Davis was appointed a delegate from La Crosse county to attend a convention of members of the various county boards of the state, to be held this winter in Sauk county. The aim of the convention is to obtain a greater uniformity of highway laws and to discuss legislation and matters directly affecting the taxpayer.

The report of the La Crosse county assessors was unanimously accepted.

TO SUE TAX DODGERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—State's Attorney Hoyne, conducting an investigation into tax-dodging in Cook county, announced yesterday that he will bring suit to recover every cent of the $50,000,000 odd, of which he alleges the county has been defrauded.

Even the Tiger Didn't Escape.

After the collapse of the empire of Napoleon III. at Sedan and the formation of the French republic, the national assembly, on which the whole safety of the country depended, spent much of its time—although the Germans were thundering down on the devoted city—in changing the names of things—streets, buildings, departments and what not—from "royal" and "imperial" to "national." Finally, by solemn decree of the assembly, the name of the royal Bengal tiger in the Paris zoo was changed to the "national Bengal tiger," and the custodians of the animal were charged to see that the signs above the cages were changed in accordance with the decree.

High School Haps

An informal lunch was given in honor of the faculty yesterday evening after school, by the Poke Gama Literary society of the high school.

Miss Catherine Hayes, a member of the history department at the high school, was unable to attend her classes yesterday on account of illness. Miss Torrance taught her classes while Margery Taylor took charge of the library.

A change has been made in the telephone service at the high school. There are now four party lines in the building and a phone in Mr. McCormick's office and that of the board of education. The interior exchange has been disconnected from the downtown central. There are phones in the library, office, manual training department and lunch room, connected directly with central and having each a distinct number. Heretofore the board had to pay one dollar a month for every phone in the building. Now only five phones must pay this charge.

WHEAT MOVING SLOWLY
GRAND FORKS, N. D., Nov. 14.—Although the wheat crop throughout the northwest is the biggest in years, the railroad men claim today that the movement is 33 per cent below. This they attribute to the high price of grain and war, which they say have influenced farmers to hold the grain for higher prices. An unusually open fall has allowed much fall plowing and this, too, contributed to the slow movement of grain. With the coming of real cold, when roads will be frozen and fall plowing delayed, a heavier movement of grain is expected.

Distance, at any rate, doesn't lend enchantment to money.
You do not want to hear her, do you?
Reply: "I'll be a sister to you?"

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 14.—Peter Fieler, deputy sheriff, who was shot on election day by C. W. Mitchell, progressive, elected sheriff, died late yesterday.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair faded or took on that dull, faded, or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling of the hair.

A well known down-town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two; it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

The Famous Moving Picture Novel by Harold MacGrath
Author of The Man on the Box, The Goose Girl, Etc.

The Adventures of Kathlyn

Harold MacGrath, the famous author of The Man on the Box, has written a new novel. It is so intensely human in its situations, so unusual in its setting, and is told so fascinatingly by this master writer of fiction that it holds you spellbound from the opening sentence to the happy finale.

TIGER GAME HAS STAGE IN EAST

Eli-Princeton Contest in the East Holds Attention of That Section; Old Nassau Scene of Gaiety

BY HAL SHERIDAN
(Written for the United Press.)
PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 14.—With her back to the wall, Princeton meets Yale in the Palmer stadium on Osborne field this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Yale was favored in what betting there was at 5 to 3. It is Princeton's last game of the season. Yale closes the Blue schedule Saturday against Harvard. Realizing that the visitors must hold something in reserve for that Crimson contest, the jangleers today prepared to show everything they have to win from Yale, or even to tie, means that Princeton remains on the football map of the season. A defeat would push the Tigers far in the rear of the other two members of the big three.

The contest here today easily holds the spotlight of the football stage in the east, if not the entire stage, and a glimpse of Princeton, N. J., and contiguous territory stretching as far as New York far from belies the assertion. The college burg isn't very big and the crowds here today made it look like everybody in the world who had the price, the inclination and the influence to get a ticket was hereabouts. By 11 o'clock twenty of the thirty special trains from New York had poured their cheering crowds into Princeton.

Schools Old Rivals
The Yale-Princeton football battles date back to 1873, when the Tigers won three goals to nothing. The gridiron clashes between sons of Eli and the men from Nassau are unique. There was no game after the '73 clash until 1876. From that year, for thirty-eight years, Yale and Princeton have met each year with no break in their relations. Of the thirty-nine games played, Yale has the edge with twenty victories and ten defeats. There have been nine tie games, seven of which ended in nothing-nothing scores. For two years there has been no touchdown made in Yale-Princeton battles. It was by the field goal route that the score of 6-6 was registered in 1912. The 3-3 count last year came in the same manner.

While the dope says Yale should whip Princeton by a good margin, dope seldom counts in Yale-Princeton affairs, both teams always showing their best stuff of the year against each other.

YALE'S BIG CENTER IS HUMAN CATAPULT

Fast Lansing Whirlwind Team Cop Game Yesterday from the Easterners; Julian Gets Touchdown

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 14.—The Michigan agricultural football eleven celebrated its first invasion of the east by defeating Pennsylvania State on Friday, 6 to 3. Lamb scored a placement goal for State and Julian tallied a touchdown for the Aggies. The Aggies played a magnificent game, the backs, Julian, Deprato and H. Miller, tearing through State's right tackle for long gains. Smith, left tackle, also played a wonderful game for the westerners. State was held twice for downs inside the Aggies' five yard line. Captain Tobin of State, four days out of the hospital, was rushed into the game, but his efforts were futile.

HARD GAME MEANS NOTHING FOR TITLE

The Madison Contest Today Gives Locals Nothing if Won Because Capital City Is Eliminated

La Crosse high school and Madison high school are meeting today on the gridiron, in the last high school football game of the season for the local school. The game is one of the hardest on the schedule of the red and black team, as the capital city school has always been a strong rival of La Crosse. Coach Horne and Cap. Fay, however, were quite confident of a victory when they left for Madison Friday noon, as the team has been playing better, in practice, than ever before this season.

The game will be one in which La Crosse has everything to lose and nothing to gain as regards the championship title, as Madison has already been put out of the race. Mr. Horne does not intend to play any post-season games with other claimants of the state championship honors, since he thinks there is no way of definitely awarding the title. Many schools claim it every year.

The team took Assistant Coach Harry Marshall along to Madison as their guest, paying all his expenses. The men are taking this method of showing their appreciation of his work during the season in devoting his extra time to the team. The second team has decided to present Coach R. C. Puckett with a sweater as a token of their thanks for his work in coaching them. The entire squad will present Mr. Spence with a sweater. Mr. Spence has been on the sidelines every night, coaching and acting as instructor in the correct interpretation of the rules.

The high school "varsity" is today clashing with the strong Tomah Indian team at Tomah.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and logy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Chas. A. Beyschlag, druggist, 503 Main St.

BETTING FAVORS WISCONSIN

"Giants of the North" Not Picked to Win from Powerful Juneau Machine;
Cornell in Michigan

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The classiest football presented in many a day was offered up for inspection on western gridirons this afternoon. Two important muzzes, on which western conference title hopes hung, and two intersectional battles outside the conferences were the headlines for the day.

Champaign, Ill., where Chicago and Illinois met this afternoon was the biggest spot on the western football map. Inspired by the hunch that the Illini are about to seize the western title, thousands of alumni rolled into Champaign today to find more thousands already assembled under a leaden sky that threatened rain. Illinois was the favorite among the critics.

The unbeaten Wisconsin eleven hooked up with the once invulnerable "giants of the north," at Minneapolis, and it was advance dope that the Badgers should win and clinch with Illinois next Saturday for the championship. The Gophers appear confident they could throw back a not all-powerful Badger offense and drive a dint in Wisconsin's title aspirations for 1914.

The big red eleven from Cornell, with a backfield of heavyweights, clashed with Michigan at Ann Arbor with the Maize and Blue confident of another victory over an eastern invader. It will be the final game of Michigan's schedule.

Here in Chicago, Notre Dame met the Carlisle Indians at the White Sox park in another intersectional struggle of less importance. The Nebraska-Kansas battle at Lincoln, and Ohio State's meeting with Oberlin at Columbus, were other top notchers on today's program in the west.

NORMAL IN BATTLE WITH PLATTEVILLE

Locals Meet Southerners at Normal Field This Afternoon; Byers Unable to Play; Strum at Quarter

Minus the services of "Mucky" Byers, star right end and backfield man, the normal school this afternoon clashed with Platteville, one of the strongest teams in the southern normal school conference.

Art Strum, probably the most sensational player who ever graced a local normal school gridiron, started the game at quarter. Around the big man hangs the chances of the La Crosse team for winning the tilt. Many of the plays have been built around the husky backfielder. His consistent ground gaining has made him the mainstay of the team.

Platteville arrived early today and looked in fit shape for the fray. With their overwhelming defeat of Milwaukee tied to their belts, the southerners are out for another scalp for their collection.

HIGH ATHLETICS IN CAPITALIST CLASS

The high school athletic association is getting into the capitalist class. Yesterday the organization "salted" $400, profit from the Sparta game, in a timber bond, and money enough remains in the treasury to meet the rest of the season's expenses. It is the first time in history that the association has been "ahead of the game". The receipts for the Sparta game were $717, of which about $500 remained after all expenses had been paid.

URGES WORLD CLEARING HOUSE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 14.—The creation of an international clearing house where settlement of money balances in times of financial stress can be made, was the plan proposed to the Investment Bankers' Association of America yesterday. Its proponent was John J. Arnold, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago.

Artificial Butter.
Margarine, the first artificial butter, was made at Poissy, in France, in 1859, for the first time. It was made from the fat of the kidneys and loins of cattle. Tallow, lard and olive and cottonseed oil are also used in the manufacture of various butterines. Coconut butter is largely used in northern Europe.

PROTECTION AND INSURANCE

A LITTLE WAR TALK WITH THE WAR LEFT OUT

Every boy and nearly every girl must some day face the problem of being self-supporting—Independent. Unless you prepare now, when that time comes you may be dependent on someone else, helpless. The boy or girl who prepares TODAY for whatever may come tomorrow will not have to waste valuable time in PREPARING when they should be EARNING.

What would you do if suddenly you were placed in a position where you had to support yourself, and possibly others? WHAT COULD YOU DO?

The boy or girl who is now getting a thorough business training does not worry about that time—THEY WELCOME IT! That is insurance.

Would you rather have $1,000 left to you, or would you rather have a thorough business training right now? You can waste life insurance money, spend it foolishly and lose it. At the best, $1,000 would not last very long—unless you could earn enough to support yourself at least.

A good business education would not only make you self-supporting, but would enable you to make that $1,000 "get busy" and earn dividends. You can't waste a business education nor lose it. You can't wear it out! The more you use it, the more valuable it becomes. A business education is Protection, Insurance and Investment all in one.

Wise parents will not be satisfied with leaving a little life insurance. Between the two, a Business Education will prove far more valuable, but why not give both?

THIS IS WORTHY of your serious consideration; not next year, but RIGHT NOW.

New Classes will be started November 16th and December 1st. Enter then, and we can prepare you for a good paying position by June 1st.
